

This is a collection of anti tuberculosis seals of Russia and the Soviet Union. They were primarily issued around the time of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution. This collection was formed from the combined collections of Dick Green, Ray Mosbaugh, Albert Griffon (Griffon de Albert of France) and others. Dick Green originally compiled "Green's Catalog of TB Seals of the World". Ray Mosbaugh was the editor of "Mosbaugh's Red Cross Seals of the World", as well as other important seal catalogs. It was Albert Griffon's unique collection that accounts for most of the listings now in Green's Catalog.

These TB seals of Russia and the Soviet Union are among the scarcest of all TB seals due to the fact that most of them were sold during the adverse times of the revolution and usually for a three day period only; the remainders being destroyed. Another factor is that there was no known collector of this type of material in Russia at that time.

Green's Catalog of TB Seals of the World, published by the Christmas Seal and Charity Stamp Society, has developed over the years to it's present state. As new Russian TB seals have come to light, they have been added to the catalog in such a way as to seperate seals which have been issued by a given city. For example Moscow appears in three different places. This collection is mounted by grouping the seals of the Soviet Socialist Republics together and then listing the issuing cities alphabetically. For this reason the Green's numbers are not in order and below each Green's number is a proposed new numbering system for Green's Catalog.
